

STREET CAR STRIKE

Greatest in Chicago's History Began This Morning.

Attempt to Run Cars by Non-Union Men Results in Riot and Bloodshed—Mob of 3,000 Strikers Stop Cars, Throw Stones and Break Plate Glass Windows.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Rioting, bloodshed, wrecking of cars and mobbing of non-union men marked the inauguration at 4 o'clock this morning of the greatest car strike in the history of the city. No such turbulent scenes have been witnessed on the streets of Chicago since the memorable A. R. U. strike in 1894, when many lives were lost and millions of dollars' worth of property destroyed.

For four hours following the cessation of work by the men employed on the 21 lines of the Chicago City Railway company's system, which includes every surface road on the South Side, a section having approximately 500,000 inhabitants, quiet prevailed, but the storm broke a few minutes before 8 o'clock when a number of trains, all manned by non-union men, were started out of the barns. Scenes of violence followed immediately and were continued as long as cars were on the streets. Train after train was stoned, some being tipped over after their crews, bleeding from cuts inflicted by flying rocks, had abandoned them. Obstructions were placed in the cable slots and several unsuccessful attempts made to cut trolley wires. Every available policeman in the city was ordered on riot duty, but the force is not sufficient to cope with the mobs that are gathering at various places on the South Side.

The strike order authorized by the referendum vote taken recently was formally issued at a mass meeting of the South Side street car men held last night. The news of the strike spread like wild fire and the employees of the street car company still on duty made the announcement of the strike vote an occasion for rejoicing. They remained at their posts, however, until the last car was run into the barns.

Then the men silently left the barns and went to their homes. By 2 o'clock only the few car men employed in running the "owl cars" were at work, and by 4 o'clock these also had quit work, not to return until the strike is settled or broken.

Before ordering the strike the street car men made a last effort to induce General Manager McCulloch to grant their demands for a "closed shop" or submit to arbitration. The demand for the "closed shop" was the only one which stood in the way of a settlement as the company was ready to refer all questions other than that to arbitration, but insisted that it should be allowed to employ non-union men if it desired to do so.

A BRUTAL MURDER

Was Committed When Little Jay Murphy Was Shot and Killed by Tony Flory, Last Saturday—Child Buried in Newark Wednesday Afternoon.

The funeral of Jay Murphy, aged 11 years, took place from the home of his uncle, James Holbrook 185 South Second street, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. H. Newton Miller conducting the services.

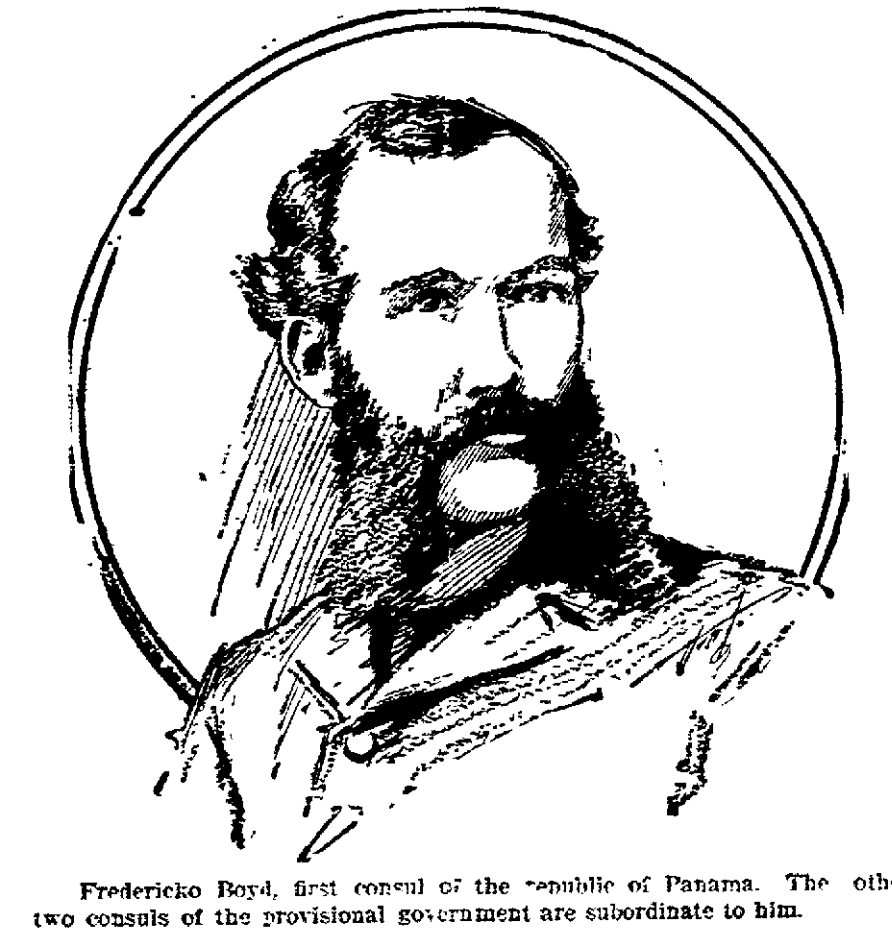

James Martin of Ellsworth, Pa., was here to attend the funeral and gave a little different account of the fatal shooting of the little Murphy boy. He says that Jay and three other boys on last Saturday afternoon were playing as usual about the coal tipples, three miles from Ellsworth, and starting home, passed a clump of blackberry bushes, where was concealed an Italian named Tony Flory, aged about 16 years, who with the remark, "Now I've got you," fired a shot gun point blank at Murphy, the load passing through his body and causing instant death. The murderer ran some distance from the scene, and was picked up by a passenger crew, who knew of the shooting, and turned him over to the officers.

Flory is now in the Washington county jail awaiting trial on the charge of murder. He has been in the reform school and bears a bad reputation for a vicious and cruel nature.

The relatives of little Jay are deeply grateful for the kindly sympathy and assistance during the funeral.

On Erie, Pa. Trolley Line.

KILLS FIVE PERSONS OUTRIGHT.

Erie, Pa., Nov. 12.—A terrible accident happened last night on the Erie Traction company line which runs between here and Cambridge Springs, in which five people were instantly killed and several badly injured, two fatally.

The accident occurred south of McKean, or about 11 miles from this city.

THE DEAD.

Mrs. Bartlett, Edenboro.
Mrs. Sherwood, Cambridge Springs.
Mr. and Mrs. Amilton, McKean.
Another woman, name not known at present.

THE FATALLY INJURED.

Motorman Anderson.
C. H. Davis, a traveling salesman, Goshen, Ind.

The accident was caused by the brakes on a car of gravel becoming loose and allowing it to run out from the side track on which it had been placed to the main track, where there was a heavy down grade.

While running at a high rate of speed it met and almost crashed through the passenger car which left Erie shortly after 8 o'clock, and which as usual was filled with people who had been in the city shopping and attending criminal court.

WOMAN'S DEATH

Caused by Fright Which Resulted From a Drunken Man Entering Her Sick Room.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 12.—Mrs. Ella F. Thomas, 28, 334 East Main street, died at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning as the direct result of a fright received last Monday afternoon when a strange drunken man walked into the sick woman's bedroom without the slightest warning.

Mrs. Thomas, who was a sufferer from heart trouble, has been confined to her bed for more than a year. She has been attended constantly, but Monday afternoon her husband, Lewis C. Thomas, left the house on an errand. During his absence the intoxicated man entered.

Mrs. Thomas is survived by a husband and two small sons. Three brothers also survive. Her mother is now ill of heart trouble, and the shock of her daughter's sudden death may result fatally.

SLEEPING BABY

Attacked by a Cat—Little Victim's Face Terribly Lacerated by Blood-Sucking Feline.

East Liverpool, O., Nov. 12.—While lying in the arms of his mother, Clyde, the 18-months-old baby of Mrs. Emma Prout, came near being killed this morning in a singular manner.

The family cat crawled onto the bed and commenced sucking the little one's breath and after biting a hole in its lip started to suck its lifeblood.

The child awoke, but not until it had been rendered almost lifeless.

In tearing the cat away the baby was badly cut about the face. It is feared blood-poisoning will result.

A Young Life Ended.

Helen Elizabeth Henry, youngest child of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Henry, died at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Norman Wednesday night, after an illness of six months. She was born August 19, 1892. Since the death of her mother, she has made her home with grandma Norman, and was the life of the home. But she has gone to join her mother, father, brother and two sisters, all of whom have passed away in five years. Her sister, Hazel, died only a year ago, this past August, and Rhea, this past April. It seems strange how a whole family should be taken, yet, "God's will be done." Out of a family of five children, only one brother is left. She leaves to mourn her, the grandmother, one brother, Charles, of Coshocton, and a half sister, Mrs. J. P. Lucas, of Coshocton, besides a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral will take place from the late home, No. 229 Buckingham street, at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Helen's uncles, Messrs. C. P. Henry, J. F. Norman of Coshocton, O. W. Norman, F. B. Norman, C. D. Henry of this city, and her brother-in-law, J. P. Lucas, of Coshocton, will act as pall-bearers.

Sad Affliction.

Roland Cooperider, one of the O. S. U.'s most prominent and highly respected students, has been compelled to give up his course in veterinary medicine on account of his eyes. Mr. Cooperider stood at the head of all his classes and was a faithful worker in the Y. M. C. A. and in Bible work, and was exceedingly liked and respected by all who knew him. His many friends and associates, and especially classmates, express their sincere sympathy for him, and hope that in a few weeks he will be able to return to college and complete his course.

HANNA'S WAR ON GENERAL WOOD

Will Bring on Direct Conflict With Roosevelt.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Senator Hanna's war on General Wood will bring him in direct conflict with President Roosevelt and it is regarded as another indication that Uncle Mark will not accept the chairmanship of the national committee next year. Foraker has declared in favor of the prompt confirmation of Wood, so he and Hanna will have another tussle.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—It is said today that the late William L. Elkins has provided that $10,000,000 of his fortune of $25,000,000 be left to charity. The remaining $15,000,000 will go to his family. The securities of which his estate consist are looked upon as being of the "gilt edged" class and none of them will be put on the market.

Death of Little Boy.

Harrold, the bright and interesting little six-year-old son of Mr. Charles Redman, died at his home, 90 Cedar street, at 2:45 o'clock Wednesday morning, after an illness of only one week with pneumonia. The funeral will take place from the house tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the services will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Locke, pastor of the Second M. E. church. The interment will be made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

BOY'S TONGUE

Loosened at Roots by Jerk From Female Teacher, Who Is Arrested for the Cruelty.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 12.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Miss Hattie Bodine, who teaches in West Barre, Orleans county. Leonard Standish, a 10-year-old pupil, did something to annoy Miss Bodine. She commanded the lad to put out his tongue and, when he complied, she took hold of it and gave it a jerk, wrenching it loose. The boy fell in a faint and blood gushed from his mouth. He was immediately carried home and attended by Dr. Ogden, who found his tongue loosened at the roots. Miss Bodine's defense, it is said, is that Standish made faces at her and she took this method to stop him. There is great indignation in the neighborhood.

HOWARD-WATKINS

Robert W. Howard, Well-Known Attorney, Marries Granville Township Young Lady.

Mr. Robert W. Howard, a well-known, popular and rising young attorney, of this city, and Miss Bertha R. Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Watkins, of Granville township, were married on Wednesday. The ceremony took place at the Baptist parsonage in Granville, on Elm street, and was performed by Dr. C. J. Baldwin shortly before 10 o'clock. The happy couple left on the noon train for a trip through the East, after which they will return and take up their residence in Newark. They have the best wishes of their many friends for a life of future happiness and prosperity.

Memorial Hall Improvement.

Mr. John Fischer, of the firm of Fischer and Mahler, of Columbus, O., attended the meeting of the Auditorium trustees and presented a beautiful color sketch appropriate for the decoration of Memorial hall. He also gave them an estimate on the work. It was found, on account of the old roof leaking for several years, that this will necessitate the removal of considerable plastering on the walls and ceiling. There is a talk of steel ceilings being used.

FORAKER BOOM

Plan to Boom the Senator for President in Case Roosevelt Fails to Secure a Re-Nomination. If the Latter Can't Succeed His Followers Will Favor Foraker.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 12.—The Enquirer says:

There is a well developed plan among the friends of Senator Foraker to boom him for President in the event of President Roosevelt failing to secure a re-nomination. The movement has taken such shape that one of Senator Foraker's warmest friends and supporters made the unqualified prediction yesterday that if President Roosevelt be not nominated Foraker will be the Republican candidate for President in 1904, and that Roosevelt's strength will go to him.

From what can be learned, the intention to throw Foraker into the breach in case of Roosevelt's failure in the national convention was formulated about the time the Booker

Washington incident stirred the country. According to the story that is told, President Roosevelt realized that he had made a mistake when it was too late to rectify it.

The storm of disapproval which followed his reception of Booker T. Washington left no doubt in his mind as to the sentiment which existed in many states in the Union. Then it was, so it is said, that he called Senator Foraker to his aid with a request that he secure for him the endorsement of the state of Ohio through the Republican convention. Just what inducement, if any, was offered to Senator Foraker to accomplish this great service for the President is not known, but it gave the senior senator an opportunity to serve the President and at the same time off any presidential aspirations which Senator Hanna might have.

COLUMBUS SWINDLERS

A Gang of Real Estate Sharps Have Been at Work Robbing People of That City and Central Ohio--Seven of the Rascals in Jail.

Columbus, O., Nov. 12.—Captain Russell, of the police department, has turned up what he thinks is a gigantic land swindling scheme, in which half a dozen men of Columbus are prize movers.

Warrants are out for the arrest of George T. Barlow, a disbarred attorney, of this city; Joseph Worden, dealer in real estate; John A. Tremaine, John McVey and A. J. Martin, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, and Joseph Worden, Bert Rees and George Reis on a charge of blackmail.

The complainant is Fred E. Parsons, a wealthy farmer of Bell Point, Delaware county. Parsons complains that the men have systematically held him up for sums ranging from $125 to $500, and that they have secured from him about $4,000, including the title to some of his property.

According to Parsons, first one of the men and then another would undertake to sell his property for him. He advanced commissions and accepted notes in payment for sales.

Parsons says Barlow undertook to sell four Columbus lots for him and in the end gave him a check for $1,500 for them. The check was on a Cincinnati bank and signed by Martin. It was returned unpaid, as there were no funds in the bank to meet it.

The victim says he traded his valuable home farm for Kentucky lands and notes, and now he ascertains that the lands are valueless, and that the notes were signed by fictitious persons.

Another deal was made for the exchange of Columbus lots for Nebraska land. So far the land has not been located.

It is said that the men charged with defrauding Parsons were very careful to keep as close to legal lines as possible. Parsons is a farmer, and took it for granted that the men he dealt with were honest, and now he is out some thousands of dollars.

Of the men wanted, Bert Rees, Mc-

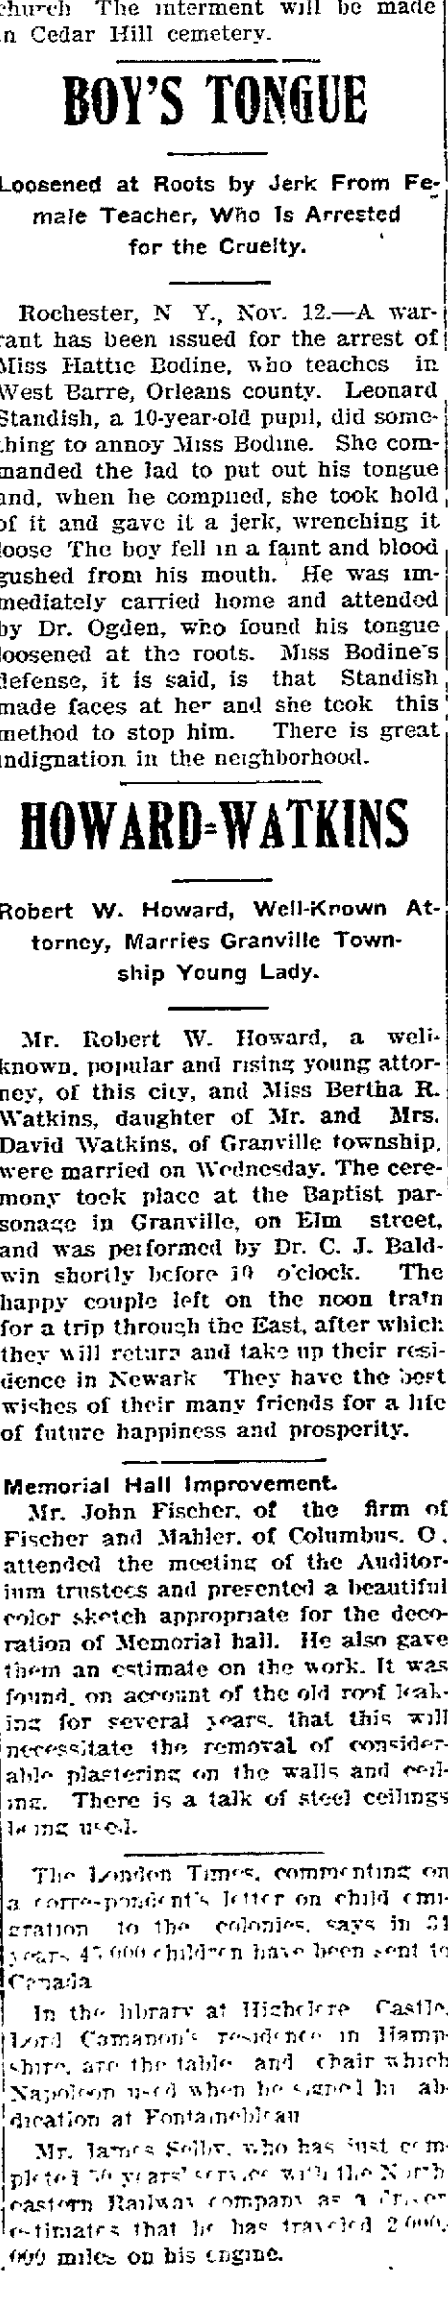

Vey and Martin were arrested. They have told the police about some of the transactions, and the police say that the game has been played on the unsophisticated throughout central Ohio. The favorite plan of the alleged land sharks, the police say, was to have one of their number appear as a purchaser. He would give notes in payment for the property desired, and the man who sold would have to put up a cash commission.

A. J. Martin is said to be known in Springfield, O., as A. J. Merkle. He dealt in real estate in that city. In a statement to the police last evening, John McVey, alias Dr. W. C. Randall, said that Jacob Wright, of Perry, Fairfield county, was another man who had been victimized. McVey says he knows the deals were crooked, but that his connection with them was honest.

Police Prosecutor Roebuck has investigated the cases, and he says: "I think that we have unearthed one of the biggest gangs of land sharks that have operated in this part of the state. Their graft was to inveigle residents from the rural districts into their toils by offering excessive amounts for their farms, the purchaser in every case being some fictitious person who could not have raised the price of a meal. After securing heavy commissions from their victims they turned them over to others of the gang, who fleeced them again. Since the Parsons affair has been unearthed I would not be surprised to see a number of other residents of the surrounding country come forward with stories of how they have been victimized."

"The confessions of the men under arrest indicate that several master minds are at the head of the organization, and that a dozen or so of hangers-on are used as tools. Affidavits will be filed as often as the victims appear, and it is not improbable that several well known local characters will be asked to explain their connection with the affair."

SAMUEL J. DAVIS

One of Newark's Prominent and Substantial Business Men, Died Suddenly Wednesday Evening, After Returning From a Walk in the Neighborhood.

Samuel J. Davis, one of the most prominent and substantial men in Newark, died at his home 118 Granville street about 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, his death being very sudden.

In the morning Mr. Davis went down town and attended to some business matters at the Newark Trust company's office, and returning, ate a hearty mid-day meal. He remained about the house until about four o'clock, when he took a walk up to Woods avenue, several squares above his home. He returned to the house about the same time his wife came home from down town, and he suggested to her that she go up stairs and change her clothing which had become damp from the rain. When she came down stairs she noticed her husband in the doorway leading to the bath room leaning heavily on his cane, and deathly white. She asked if he were ill and he replied "yes, I am very sick." She told him to hold to the door frame until she could bring him a chair, which she did, and then sent a call for Dr. C. A. Hatch, who went to the sick man's assistance as quickly as possible. Soon after the arrival of the physician, Mr. Davis became unconscious and remained so until he died.

Samuel J. Davis, solicitor of pension claims at Newark, dated his residence in this city from 1853. He was a native of Wales and was born July 24, 1834, to John and Rachel (Griffith) Davis. His parents were life-long residents of Wales, where the father engaged in farming. There were three sons in the family, the eldest of whom, David, emigrated to the United States in 1851, and settling in Newark, here followed the trade of a stonemason. In the spring of 1854, he went to California, where he worked in the gold mines, and later was employed at his trade. Thomas, a farmer by occupation, died in Wales in 1893, leaving a family.

At the age of ten years, Mr. Davis was orphaned by his father's death after which he was obliged to earn his own livelihood. When thirteen years old he commenced to work in the iron ore mines, being thus engaged until eighteen years old, when he crossed the Atlantic to the United States and proceeded direct to New York, where his brother at that time resided. After working with him at the stonemason's trade for six months, he engaged in stone cutting and furnace building in Kentucky. In July, 1854, he returned to this state and pursued similar work in the Monroe furnace near Oak Hill.

At that place in August, 1854, Mr. Davis met with the misfortune of having his leg crushed and was obliged to have the limb amputated. Upon recovering, he attended school in Newark about eight months, which was his first schooling, since, eleven years of age. He was then appointed Deputy Recorder for Licking county, in which capacity he served for four years. In 1861 he visited Washington, D. C., to see the inauguration of President Lincoln, and while there he applied for an appointment. Through the influence of Senator B. F. Wade he secured a clerkship in the census office March 11, 1861, remaining in that position until July 3, 1863. He was then transferred to the pension office and there remained until March 17, 1865, when he tendered his resignation and returned to Newark.

Politically, Mr. Davis was a Republican, and was prominent in the party. Twice he was a candidate of the party for State Senator, and although he ran ahead of his ticket, he was defeated, the party being in the minority. So close, however, was the race the second time that he came within one hundred and fifty votes of being elected. In 1888 he was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in Chicago, and also served in a similar capacity to the State convention which nominated William McKinley, Jr., Governor of Ohio, the first time he was a candidate for that office.

In 1861, Mr. Davis married Jerusha, daughter of Thomas D. Jones, a native of Newark. This lady died in 1862, and October 19, 1869, Mr. Davis was again married, his wife being Mary, daughter of Evan Jones, and a native of this city. In religious belief Mr. Davis was a member of the Welsh Congregational church and a generous contributor to benevolent projects. Mr. Davis leaves a wife but no children.

He was also a director in the Newark Trust company, and was an honest, thoroughly upright and successful business man.

The funeral will take place from the late home Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. J. G. Thomas of Lima formerly of this city, conducting the services. Rev. Benjamin James, Mr. Davis' pastor at the time of his death will assist. Interment in Cedar Hill.

IS THERE A DEVIL?

Dr. Lloyd Will Speak in Answer to This Question Tonight at Trinity Church.

At the mission at Trinity church Tuesday evening Dr. Lloyd delivered a very strong address on the subject of confirmation, stating that 97 out of every 100 Christians practice confirmation. Confirmation is not "joining the church," but is a sacramental rite supplementary to baptism. Everybody should be confirmed, no matter what denomination of Christians he belongs to or continues with. Every baptized person, by whomsoever baptized, is a member of the Holy Catholic church of the ages, defined in the ancient creeds, by virtue of his baptism; and that is the only way he can be a member of the church. By baptism one is born into the church; he should not talk about "joining the church" any more than by reason of his natural birth he would speak of having "joined his family."

Dr. Lloyd also took pains to explain the doctrine and practice of confession and absolution, as taught and practiced in the Episcopal church. He had everybody open a prayer book and see for himself just what it said on the subject. He said that confession is essential to salvation, and quoted the words of Scripture making that explicit statement. He stated that confession to a priest is not essential, but is often advisable and suitable. No man has the power to forgive sins, and no priest of any kind or name has ever claimed such power. God alone can forgive sins, but he has "given power and commandment to his ministers to declare and pronounce to his people, being penitent, the absolution and remission of their sins." To every priest this power is expressly given in his ordination—that of declaring God's pardon to penitents.

Tonight Dr. Lloyd will preach again at 7:30 o'clock. It is a treat to hear him sing hymns, as with his remarkably musical voice he brings out all the thought, sentiment and pathos of the lines. Dr. Lloyd was born in Wales, was educated at Salisbury, England and received holy orders in the Church of England.

Serious Accident.
Frank O. Richards, while engaged in roofing a new barn on the Thomas Ellis farm, six miles northeast of Newark, Thursday morning, fell to the ground, a distance of 19 feet, breaking his left leg below the hip, and also breaking the bones in his left hand. Dr. Dawson, of Hanover, and Dr. D. M. Smith, of this city, attended the injured man.

Marriage.
Oren H. Neibarger and Miss Elsie T. Wolfe, daughter of Mr. Henry Wolfe, were married on Wednesday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. Hixon at his home on North Buena Vista street. The happy couple will visit relatives in Marion for a short time, after which they will return to Newark, where they will make their future home.

A. D. T. Service.
An alarm of fire about 2 o'clock on Wednesday morning sent in from the B. & O. scale house over the "A. D. T." from one of the company's private fire alarm boxes, called the department out in quick order. When the firemen arrived at the scene they found that the alarm had been caused by the bursting of a steam pipe. The "A. D. T." has 24 fire alarm boxes scattered over the yards.

Shot Himself.
Earl Smucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smucker, had the misfortune to meet with a very painful accident on Wednesday. The little fellow was engaged in cleaning a 22-caliber revolver and was struck in the left hand by the accidental discharge of the weapon, the ball inflicting an ugly wound and nearly tearing the thumb from the hand. A physician dressed the wound and no bad results are expected.

Odd Wedding Presents.
Harry Broadwater, one of the popular letter carriers of Woodbury, N. J., and Miss Mattie Wallace were married a few evenings ago. While the bride was the recipient of many very handsome presents, the groom was not overlooked. Among his gifts were a pair of sweet singing canaries, a kitten and a little white pie nicely decorated with pink ribbons. He shipped the latter to a near by farm and hopes to get plenty of pork.

JUDGE SEWARD

ADJOURNS COMMON PLEAS COURT UNTIL MONDAY

Because of indisposition and trial of Chism case is postponed until December 9.

On account of the indisposition of Judge Seward, the court was adjourned this morning until next Monday, when motions and demurrers will be heard. On this account the case of Chism vs. The Buckeye Lake Company for damages for personal injuries sustained at Hebron, and the case of Rees R. Jones vs. Anna Sox, an action to recover commission on the sale of real estate, cannot be tried this week; and as the next three weeks have been set apart for the trial of criminal cases, the Chism case has been postponed until the morning of the 9th of December, Wednesday, at which time it is expected that the case will be tried. After the completion of the trial of that case, the case of Jones vs. Sox will be commenced.

MISSION

At St. Francis de Sales Church Growing in Interest—Interesting Subjects Discussed

The subject, "Is there a Hell?" was answered last evening by Father Gabriel. He proved that there must be a hell both from reason and revelation. He said that the end of good was heaven, and the end of evil was hell. If the God-Man died on the cross to save man, He must have died to save him from something that had an existence, otherwise His sufferings were foolish which would be the same as saying that God could do something unworthy of His infinite intelligence. Speaking of the damned he said, "He will not be the death of a sinner, but that all should be converted and live." If there be any one in hell he is there by his own will, not by the will of his Creator.

On the sufferings of the damned he waived the subject of hell-fire and showed what an awful thing it is to be driven away from God "into exterior darkness," where the soul will be tortured forever by its own powers; by the intelligence which will have lost truth, by the will which will have lost love, and by the memory which will recall all its past lost opportunities for good, all the days of innocence in youth, the happiness of home, of good companions, of church, etc. In his peroration the speaker made a most touching appeal to all to turn to their kind Redeemer, who died that He might save all from everlasting death and damnation.

Father Alexander will preach tonight on the subject of "Intemperance," and it is hoped that there will be a very large audience present. The rector of St. Francis de Sales invites all his dissenting brethren who can come to be present at the exercises of the mission, and which the people of the church find it both convenient and easy to contribute towards the expenses of the mission, he wishes to assure all others that they are not expected to contribute anything, so that no one can suffer the least embarrassment.

Blais a Candidate.
The many friends in Newark of Julius A. Blais, of Cleveland, will be interested to learn that he will be a candidate for adjutant general under Governor Herrick, to succeed General Geyer. Captain Blais is one of the most popular, and at the same time most efficient men in the Guard. He has brought his battery to Newark annually for years and is well known and has many friends in this city.

ALCOHOLIC KIDNEY REMEDIES SOON PUT ONE BEYOND HELP.

Remember this:—Kidney-Wort Tablets CANNOT contain alcohol.

Kidney Trouble Kept MRS. HILL From Eating or Sleeping.

Aug. 27, 1903, Mrs. Samuel Hill, of Verday, Albany Co., N. Y., writes: "Some time ago I had severe pains and lameness through the region of my kidneys, and could neither eat or sleep well. I took about two bottles of Kidney-Wort Tablets, and am able to say that I can now sleep and eat well, and also, that my kidneys are in a hundred per cent. better condition than they have been for some time."

The kidneys are the two tireless filters on either sides of the spine. Their action means life, health, happiness and strength; their inaction disease and death.

At the first threatening feeling of distress over the loins, persistent constipation, loss of strength, swelling of hands or feet, dizziness, deranged digestion, foul breath, high-colored, scanty urine or painful urination, don't delay in stopping the irritation that is surely going on in the kidneys. Kidney-Wort Tablets are the only true specific. They allay the inflammation.

AMUSEMENTS.

One of the most popular attractions of the present day is that beautiful and interesting drama, entitled "The Village Parson." The piece has scored an immense hit wherever produced, and its success has been achieved long since. There is an attractive ring in the title, which calls the attention of all classes of amusement goers to the theater. The play deals with the affection of the heart, and is one where human emotions and pathos are strongly depicted. A very strong company has been engaged, each with reference to the part assigned, and it is confidently believed that this pretty play is rendered in much better style than is usual with traveling companies. Handsome special scenery has been painted expressly for this production by well-known artists and unique effects also assist in the finished performance. "The Village Parson" will be seen at the Auditorium tomorrow night, November 12.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

The Auditorium management announced this morning that Al W. Martin's big revival of Uncle Tom's Cabin will be brought to that popular play house in the near future. The announcement will no doubt be hailed with delight, for Newark theater-goers are always anxious to witness a production that is being praised by the press and pulpit. It is said that over sixty people are employed in the production and the scenery magnificent to behold.

HUMPTY DUMPTY.

"Humpty Dumpty," with all its elaborate scenic and mechanical effects, gorgeous costumes, sweet music, interesting specialties and clever acting by a company of over thirty first-class entertainers, headed by the funniest pantomime clown in America, Mr. Eddie McDonald, will be at the Auditorium next Tuesday night. If you want to enjoy a good hearty laugh and a pleasant evening, don't fail to be there.

What to do Until the Doctor Arrives.

"One of my children was taken with cramp colic and suffered severely," says S. B. Elzee, of Monett, Mo. "I telephoned for a doctor, then gave a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and a few minutes later a second dose. Before the doctor came the child was relieved." ## DEMOCRATIC PROSPECTS.

Not only the determined statements of Democrats throughout the country but the warnings and ominous still alarms of the Republicans that are attracting attention, point to Democratic unity and bright prospects of Democratic victory in 1904.

It is developing that "the party without any issue" has all the issues in its favor, and that the party which claims to have all the issues really has more "fascality" than anything else. Hence the people are with the Democratic party because they realize it is time they were claiming possession of what is rightfully theirs, but what a political clique has been manipulating to satisfy its own cravings.

Many of the conservative Republican papers admit that with perfected organization the Democratic party is more than likely to win in 1904. The party will have a strong organization with able men at its head, and the party is going to win, victory is in the air. The Republican party has drunk too deeply of power. It has gone too far along paths of arrogance and iniquity. It is nearing the end of its days of unquestioned control and the time of accounting is coming. The end of the corruption and "grafting" is coming as certain as the rising and setting of the sun. With unity of purpose and wisdom of policy the Democrats can win in the next campaign, "with a long pull and a strong pull and a pull all together" the control of the country is to be wrested from unjust hands. The people are growing tired of postoffice scandals, land frauds and other stealing in nearly every department of the administration.

The recently appointed minister of the recently recognized republic of Panama had no more than received notification of his elevation than he took his pen in hand and wrote an uncalled-for letter to Senator Morgan, calling that venerable and able statesman's attention to the fact that he has been wrong all these years regarding the Panama and Nicaragua canal routes, and that it was time for him to change his mind and favor the Panama route. The presumption of this diplomatic fegeling is refreshing and naturally angered the Alabamian senator. Other ministers have been recalled for like offenses, and it will be passing strange if this one is not asked to apologize.

After all the talk about casting Mr. Hanna aside and running the ensuing presidential campaign without the ringer-master from Ohio and his somewhat remarkable lot of assistants, including General Dick, a change has come. Mr. Roosevelt has for the time being assumed the character of Oliver and humbly asks for more of the Hanna brand of treacle. This must be humiliating in a sense, for the President realizes that he is anything but popular with the Ohioan, and besides the Ohioan is as fully aware of the fact that he holds no torrid place in Mr. Roosevelt's esteem. The truth is that the President grows fearful lest this Buckeye boss makes his muscles dance and takes the coveted nomination. It is said that Mr. Hanna is taking Mr. Roosevelt's request under advisement, and this means that certain important details relative to patronage must be arranged satisfactorily. Still it is a long ways from the nomination and even the election.

CHAMBERLAIN'S ANTI-AMERICAN TARIFF.

The premier of Manitoba in the North American Review declares in favor of Mr. Chamberlain's scheme of closer trade relations between Great Britain and the colonies. He takes a remarkably buoyant view of the possibilities of agricultural production in the far Northwest, and of course is anxious to find out where it is to be sold after it has been harvested. Mr. Roblin, the premier says that in 1892 Manitoba and the Northwest Canadian territory raised 125,000,000 bushels of wheat, oats and barley, and that ten years hence, "on the most careful estimate, based only on the present rate of settlement and population," the yield will be 600,000,000 bushels, and the United Kingdom can be supplied with all the wheat, oats and barley it wants from outside sources, and, in addition, with all the beef it needs.

The premier argues that if a comparatively small preference is given to Canadian breadstuffs the unsold cultivable lands of Manitoba and the Northwest territory, amounting to over 45,000,000 acres, will be reduced to cultivation speedily. He assumes that Western Canada, under the stimulating influence of Mr. Chamberlain's scheme, will have in ten years an additional rural population of 2,300,000 souls. This, it is alleged, will mean a greatly increased demand for British manufactures, and, consequently, more work at good wages for British operatives.

This marks the extent to which Mr. Chamberlain's preferential trade negotiations may affect the United States by the admission of Canadian grain into British ports free of customs taxation, with a duty on grain produced in the United States of ten or twenty cents a bushel, amply sufficient to exclude American wheat and give the preference and the market to Canadian wheat. That is one way to look at Mr. Chamberlain's preferential tariff plans, and it is not altogether a pleasant way for our Northwestern States.

SHIP MAST UNDER ROOF.

Annapolis Students Have Full Spread of Sails For Indoor Practice.
The unique spectacle of a full sized mast with all the sails, yards, blocks and ropes exactly as on a full rigged ship, within four walls and under a roof is now to be seen at the new boathouse at the Naval academy in Annapolis.

It is stated by those at the Naval academy who have studied the subject that it is the only one of the kind in the world. There is a large mast used for purposes of instruction in Germany, but it is out of doors, and there is a small mast in a building at Newport, but it is not nearly the size of the one at Annapolis.

The mast which has been erected in the boathouse is seventy-two feet in height and is exactly like in every way the mizenmast of the United States steamship Chesapeake, which was especially constructed for the practice work of the midshipmen.

Monmsen's Absent Mindedness.
The late celebrated German historian, Theodor Mommsen, was the most absent minded of men, says the New York Press. Once while going from Berlin to Charlottenburg, a half hour's journey, the trolley car in which he rode went off the track. The rest of the passengers took another car and went ahead, and the stranded vehicle was abandoned till help could be found. Mommsen remained, reading his book. An hour or two later the sound of jacks, levers, derricks, etc., aroused him. Rising from his seat, he went to the door and with the most complete unconcern imaginable remarked: "I suppose we have come to a standstill."

The Ohio State Journal's Suppressed Editorial On Hanna.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

This is a most mortifying exhibition which comes from Columbus, Ohio, of the degradation into which newspapers fall when they allow themselves to be made the organs of political parties. The State Journal of Columbus is in many respects a good newspaper, but it has long been the Republican organ for Ohio. As the organ of its party it has acquired a certain prestige and it has no doubt received state printing and advertising as a favor from its party. But all the advantages it has reaped from its official organism are outweighed by a humiliation put upon that paper this week. The State Journal, as many Republicans have done, construed the enormous majority for its party in that state on Tuesday as a demand for Senator Hanna as the Republican candidate for president next year. It had ground for its position. There is no question that the popularity and character of Senator Hanna contributed more to the size of the Republican vote in Ohio than any other cause. So the State Journal decided to announce Senator Hanna as its choice for the Republican nomination for president next year. Any real paper had a perfect right to take such a position. The State Journal put in type an editorial giving its reasons for desiring the nomination of Senator Hanna, and then gave copies of it to correspondents of papers in Cincinnati and Cleveland. The Cleveland reporters naturally hunted up Senator Hanna when the text of the article reached them and asked his opinion of it. As a result the State Journal suppressed the editorial, and at 2 o'clock in the morning sent out dispatches to the other newspapers announcing that its Hanna campaign was "all off."

In the interval Senator Hanna had gone to the telephone and demanded the withdrawal of the article. If the Ohio State Journal had carried its sovereignty under its own hat he would have had no right to make such a demand, and the editor would have been as much justified in disregarding Senator Hanna's requests, however earnest they might be, as all editors are in disregarding requests for the suppression of news from persons whose private interests will be affected by publicity. But under the antiquated ethics of party journalism, there was a moral force back of Senator Hanna as well as the power of a party machine. Because the State Journal is the party organ, and because Senator Hanna is the party leader, the publication of such an article there would have been assumed to have the sanction of Senator Hanna in advance. An announcement which was sure to be so received would have been embarrassing to Senator Hanna, and would be robbed in advance of the weight which would come from any honest advocacy of his nomination.

The suppression of the article shows that it was the honest expression of the editor's conviction, with which Senator Hanna had nothing to do. That being the case, the senator should have been powerless to prevent its publication. The paper, if it is a newspaper at all, and not a mere partisan campaign dodger, should baste to put itself in a position where its editorials cannot be assumed to have been dictated by anybody outside of its own office. Then its articles will carry the weight that always attaches to honest and independent thinking and to the fearless expression of honest conviction. That is the only position which gives to a newspaper the respect of its constituency. Party leaders can, and do, properly express their own positions in interviews with reporters, which all newspapers print. The world has grown too busy for people to stop to read editorial pages which are but a pale reflection of those official interviews. If the State Journal owned itself it would have the power to place before the Republicans of the country the candidacy of Senator Hanna. It might in that way do a great service to its party and to its country. Now its power is limited to publishing such articles as Senator Hanna may approve, either in actual, fact or by implication. So long as it maintains that attitude its influence must suffer and its prosperity must decline before the competition of rivals which are not tied to any leader's apron string. Let the State Journal and all other papers in its humiliating situation cut loose and own their own souls. If they are fit to live they can live without party patronage far better than the party machines can live without them. If they are not fit to live as newspapers, their editors can at least keep books, or sell goods or dig ditches, and retain their own self-respect and the right to express their honest opinions. But the weight of dignity and public respect, go to the independent newspapers. The position of the party organ is everywhere declining to the pitiable figure in this incident by the Ohio State Journal.

AN OLD CHURCH BELL

IT CAME FROM LISBON AND HANGS IN A NANTUCKET CHURCH.

The Story of Its Purchase by Captain Clasby and Its Transportation to This Country—A Very Good Clock and a Very Fine Bell.

Beneath the outlook in a Nantucket church is the belfry, in which swings the "old Spanish bell." Knowing that this is now a Unitarian church, the visitor will be surprised to see a Catholic cross on the bell. If he could read Portuguese and had not previously acquainted himself with the history of the bell he would be still more surprised at the inscription on it. The translation of this inscription is as follows: "To the Good Jesus of the Mountain the devotees of Lisbon direct their prayers, offering Him one complete set of six bells, to call the people to adore him in his sanctuary. Jose Domingos Dacosta has made it in Lisbon in the year 1810." Of course the bell must have an interesting history to account for this inscription. That history is briefly as follows:

A plague was raging in Lisbon and certain people in that city prayed to the Virgin Mary for the cessation of the plague and vowed to place a set of six bells in the Church of the Good Jesus of the Mountain if their prayers were heard. "The Mountain" is the name of a certain district in the city of Lisbon in which there is a very venerable church called as above. Shortly after this the plague ceased, and, accepting this as the answer to their prayers, these devotees of Lisbon proceeded to fulfill their vows. The work of casting these six bells was intrusted to Jose Domingos Dacosta, the best bell founder in Lisbon.

The six bells had been cast, the master's labors had been crowned with success, when Captain Clasby of the Nantucket whaling fleet chanced to visit Lisbon. He had long wished to buy a bell for use in his native town. In company with Captain Cary he visited the bell foundry of Jose Domingos Dacosta. Captain Cary, it seems, was a connoisseur in bells. Dacosta applied the lever to one bell after another as he struck each to ascertain its peculiar tone or tone quality, but each time Captain Cary said, "That will not do."

At last Dacosta raised and struck the bell whose history we are describing. Captain Cary was delighted with the result. "Ah, Clasby," he said, "you need look no further. That's the bell you want. She is a beauty. She sounds on B."

"Well, sir," remarked Dacosta, "we consider that to be the finest bell that we have in our foundry."

At first Dacosta demurred and could not see his way clear to selling the bell, since it belonged to the set of chimes designed for the Church of the Good Jesus of the Mountain and was appropriately inscribed and all, but Captain Clasby would have no other. Finally Dacosta decided, since the bell had not yet been consecrated and since he could cast another to take its place, that it would be all right to sell.

So Captain Clasby bought the bell, and it was brought to Nantucket by Captain Cary, whose vessel was going home first. In Lisbon, just before he set sail, Captain Cary heard of the declaration of war with Great Britain, for it was now the year 1812. On the way over they were spoken by a British sloop of war. Fortunately the Britisher had been at sea for some time and had not yet heard of the declaration of war. "The commander asked Captain Cary the news, but Captain Cary says he took especial pains not to tell all he knew. If he had told, our precious bell would probably never have seen Nantucket. It might now be either at the bottom of the sea or it might be swinging in the tower of some English church."

The bell was landed in Nantucket and placed in the store cellar of Samuel Cary, where it remained until 1815, when it was purchased and placed in the tower where it now hangs. About $500 was given for the bell—the society paid about $350 and the rest was raised by subscription. Even some Friends or Quakers subscribed.

After the bell had been in use a little while the agents of the historic Old South church in Boston heard of it, and they sent a letter to the agents of the South church in Nantucket, saying that they had a very good clock in their tower, but no bell; that they had heard that the South church in Nantucket had a very fine bell, and they would like to know for how much the bell could be bought.

The Nantucketers replied that they had a very fine bell in their tower, but no clock; that they had heard that the Old South church had a very fine tower clock, and that they would like to know the price of the clock.

The agents offered to pay $1 a pound for the bell. Since the bell weighs 1,575 pounds, this would have made the price $1,575, making a net profit of $1,075 above the price paid for the bell and $1,225 above the amount contributed by the society. It seems that the old Nantucketers must have had some sentiment after all and were not purely mercantile in their spirit.

If the Nantucketers had agreed to sell, as they might have done, our bell would probably be hanging in the historic tower of Old South church in Boston today. That might have been a great honor for the bell, but it would have been a great deprivation for Nantucket. Moreover, it would now be spending its time in elegant leisure instead of being a very useful bell where it is. The history of this bell is like a veritable parable of human life. The possibilities which occur in the history of the bell remind us of the possibilities which abound in every life.—Cor. Springfield Republican.

SUNDAY SCHOOL
CONVENTION OF BENNINGTON
TOWNSHIP LAST SATURDAY

Held in the Christian Church at Appleton Was Largely Attended and Was Big Success.

The ninth semi-annual Sunday School convention of Bennington
Township was held in the Appleton
Christian church Saturday, November 7, 1903. The sessions were opened by Mr. Harvey Peters in the absence of the President, Mr. S. M. Swickard, who was unable to be present.

The opening service was conducted by Mr. C. W. Shinn, the county secretary. The Ohio Sunday School Concert Exercise was used in this service.

The program which followed consisted of recitations by Joseph Lockwood and Louie Denty, and a quartet by the Appleton Christian S. S.
Mr. B. M. Hoover read an excellent paper on "Some Stakes and Mistakes."

In this paper he made clear the Christlike and the un-Christlike ways of some Christians so called. The paper was discussed by Mr. Shinn and Rev. Mr. Harris of Utica.

Miss Iva Shipley of the Wesleyan school, then read a paper prepared by Mrs. S. M. Swickard on the subject,
"Improving Sunday School Teaching."

The discussion of this paper was led by Rev. Joseph Long of Centerburg, who said, in part: Two of the greatest weaknesses in the Sunday School today are the teaching force, and the study of the lessons. "We shall not have the most successful Sunday school teaching until we get teachers who are qualified for their work by heredity, endowment and training.

Mrs. Rev. Parsons asked the question "What are some of the best methods of teaching the little ones that will interest them?" The use of Sunday school cards, maps, the memorizing of Scripture and the manifesting of a beautiful Christian spirit were some of the answers given. Mr. B. M.

Hoover suggested that the lesson should be applied in story form. Mr.
Shinn then presented the merits of the "Ohio Sunday School Worker" and solicited the schools to organize clubs. The afternoon session closed with benediction by Rev. Mr. Long.

The evening session was opened with devotional service led by the County Secretary.

The first number on the program was a recitation by Miss Cora Graves.
This was followed by another by Myrtle Vanhoden of Wesley school.

Rev. Joseph Long followed with an address on "Bible Study in the Sunday School." After outlining a few of the minor objects of the Sunday school, he said that the chief aim was a perfect study of the lesson help.
The help will then be real aid. The lesson help should never be brought to the recitation. We should study the Bible for its intellectual culture, its ethical contents, its religious sentiment and because it is God's book.
The address was broad and deep.

Susie Hatfield and Pearl Hall of the Bennington school then delighted the convention with a beautiful duet.
This was followed by an excellent paper on the power of music. The paper was discussed by Rev. Mr. Parsons and Rev. Mr. Harris.

The last address of the evening was made by Mr. C. W. Shinn, the County
Secretary, on "Teacher Training."

After showing that there was a demand for trained men in every branch of labor, Mr. Shinn proceeded to show that there is such a demand for trained Sunday school teachers on the part of the scholars, the church and the cause. He further said that efforts were being made to supply this demand in a summer training school at Winona Lake, Indiana, and also a state training school at Hiawatha Park, Mt. Vernon, Ohio. Mr. Shinn also said that there was talk of a Sunday School Teachers training school being started in Licking county in the near future. The matter of teacher training classes in every Sunday school was then presented with much force and a sample lesson was given. In closing Mr. Shinn made a strong plea for the spiritual side of the work.

NOTES.
The interest prevailing in the township was manifested by the good attendance at each session.
President and Mrs. Swickard's inability to be present was a disappointment, although Vice President Harvey
Peters did remarkably well.
The people of Appleton and vicinity know how to make a convention welcome.

County Secretary Shinn is doing an excellent work.

THE POPULAR GERMAN AMBASSADOR AND HIS AMERICAN WIFE

THE EMBASSY LEAVES SUMMER QUARTERS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE
AND IS BACK IN WASHINGTON—ONE OF THE MOST ATTRACTIVE
LADIES IN THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Baron Speckvon Sternberg, the German ambasador, and his wife, who is considered one of the most attractive of the ladies of the diplomatic corps, have returned to Washington from The Weirs, N. H., where the embassy had been established for the summer, and are ready for the coming events of the winter—social as well as diplomatic. The embassy here has been extensively remodeled and is now one of the handsomest of the homes of the foreign representatives at the national capital.

The pictures herewith presented were but recently taken and show the baron in the full regalia of his military rank. The necklace worn by the baroness is one of the most exquisite specimens of the goldsmith's art and represents a small fortune. But the ambassador and his wife can permit themselves luxuries of this sort, as each is possessed of a large personal fortune. Baroness von Sternberg is an American woman and many years of her life were spent at Louisville.

Baron Sternberg was sent to this country for the particular purpose of strengthening the cordial relations between the two countries, a task in which he has been eminently successful. He is an intimate friend of President Roosevelt and the two are frequently seen horseback together.

Baron Sternberg has made himself immensely popular in Washington. The contrast between the courtesy of his manner and the boorishness of his predecessor, Herr von Holleben, is of a character so conspicuous that his success was almost immediate. The baroness also is of most approachable disposition and has become a social favorite in the exclusive official set.

New Rural Route Starts From Village
Next Monday—Budget of College Town News.

Granville, O., Nov. 12.—Mr. Charles V. Jones, the mail carrier for the new rural free delivery route No. 3, recently secured by Congressman Cassing-ham, to run from the Granville postoffice, will commence his duties on next Monday, November 16. The new route embraces the following territory: Leaving the Granville postoffice, the carrier will distribute mail east to Burdham's corners, thence north to Jones' corners, thence west to Davis' corners, thence southwest to the Granville corporation line, thence north to Fredonia, thence east to Wright's corners, thence to Warwick's corners, thence east to the school house, thence to Young's corners, thence west to Griffiths and south to the Granville postoffice. The total length of the route is 22 1-2 miles, covering 24 square miles. The number of houses on the route is 112 and the population served is 500.

The Denison football team will play the Newark Y. M. C. A. team on Thanksgiving day. The game will be played on the athletic grounds in Newark, and a big crowd will undoubtedly be in attendance to witness it. The Denison boys were to have played West Virginia on that date, but cancelled the engagement.

The members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity will entertain on Saturday afternoon, November 21, from 3 to 4.
On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Arabella Tight entertained a number of friends with a thimble party in her usual hospitable and charming manner. The afternoon was very pleasantly spent and a bountiful and delicious repast was served.

Mrs. E. S. Browne, of Newark, spent Wednesday in Granville, the guest of Mrs. F. L. Ferguson.

On Wednesday evening Professor and Mrs. Bunyon Spencer entertained Professor Spencer's Greek classes in a very charming manner at their home on Broadway. In spite of the inclem-ency of the weather, nearly all who are Academy Greek pupils were present, and a very pleasant evening was participated in.

A team made up of old members of the Granville High school will play

STOLEN GOODS

[Original]
People wonder when they hear of the blundering methods thieves take to realize on their plunder that they act so stupidly. Is it stupidity or have they a difficult problem to solve? I've "been there" myself and know something about it.

One day I saw a bundle lying on the sidewalk in front of my house. I picked it up and was fingering it to discover what was inside when I saw a policeman looking at me. I didn't wish to turn over my find to him, and even if I did so he might accuse me of stealing it. Assuming a careless air, I walked on past my house and around the block. When I reached my door as I took out my key I glanced down the street. There was the policeman eyeing me with a very suspicious look on his face. Once inside I opened the package. It contained a piece of silk, some handkerchiefs and stockings. At first I supposed some one had bought the articles, but on second thought concluded that a "shoplifter" had stolen them and, finding it dangerous to have them in his or her keeping, had dropped them.

I felt very uncomfortable at my position. Indeed I became much alarmed. I must get rid of the parcel as soon as possible.

Mind you, I was not facing a problem of securing their value. All I cared to do was to get them out of my possession. My first thought was to burn them. Unfortunately it is very difficult to burn such fabrics without creating an unpleasant odor, and I could not tell when the policeman who had followed me might enter the house. The next expedient I conceived was to hide them. That would never do. If the house were searched it would be searched thoroughly. These plans were abandoned as soon as conceived.

I tied up the bundle and, going upstairs to my wife, was about to tell her what had happened when she showed me that matters were even worse than I had supposed by exclaiming:

"Heavens, how white you are! What's the matter?"

Then I knew that if found with the goods on my hands my appearance would be strong proof against me. I told her the story, and she was at once thrown into the same state of anxiety as I. We hurriedly talked over different plans of action and finally decided that I was to make an effort to get the goods out of the house.

Ours was separate from other houses, standing in a yard by itself. The four sides of its sloping roof culminated in a platform, from which one could see in every direction. My wife went up on to this platform, and when the coast was clear, so far as uniformed officers of the law were concerned, she called to me, and I dashed out with the bundle through the back door and into an alley.

Up to the moment of finding myself free from my own premises without interruption I had supposed that the rest would be very easy. I did not find it so. To drop the bundle in the alley in the rear of my own house would be a bad giveaway. I must reappear with it on the street. Fortunately I was able to get on an avenue where I would not be liable to encounter the man who had suspected me. Summoning what coolness there was left in me, I emerged upon this avenue and entered the throng.

I could not have regained much of my equanimity, for my teatime appearance caused people I met to glance at me. This made matters worse, and the farther I walked the more I was noticed. I turned into a recess between several buildings and was about to drop my bundle when a door opened and a woman came out. I dashed out of the place and made no further effort till I had gained the outskirts of the city. Coming to a bridge, I tied a stone to the bundle with a view to dropping it in the water. Just as I was about to do so who should drive by but my friend Charley Reeves.

"Hello, Tomkins," he said, reining up. "What are you doing away out here?"

I stammered out something incoherent, and Reeves, looking at me searchingly, made up his mind that I was ill and "out of my head." He forced me into his wagon and drove me home. By this time I had given up in despair and concluded to go back without resistance and submit to arrest. I entered my house, expecting to find the police there waiting for me. I was relieved that they were not and had not been there. My wife made me lie down and bathed my temples with cold water. The bundle lay on the table, and I could not compose myself till she had put it where I couldn't see it. I was getting quieted down when there came a sharp ring at the door bell.

"Now, keep up, dear," said my wife, "for my sake." Then she went downstairs and opened the door. I listened from the landing and heard a boy's voice say:

"Will you please sign for the goods you bought this morning? I didn't get the receipt when I delivered them."

There was silence for some moments, then my wife seemed to have recovered sufficiently to say:

"I have not received them."

An idea shot into my head. "What did you buy?" I called.

"Five yards of silk, a dozen handkerchiefs, six pairs of stockings."

"Well, I have made an ass of myself. The boy must have dropped the things, and I picked them up."

Then my wife came upstairs and for the first time examined the bundle.

No, I don't think thieves have an easy time disposing of their goods. I'd rather saw wood than be in that business.

MARTIN C. HUNTER.

ANIMALS WITH HANDS.

Use of the Paws in Conveying Food to the Mouth.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it to their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of the pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other. In "Alice in Wonderland" the lizard is always making notes on a slate and then trying to rub them out again with his fingers. Many lizards' feet are so like hands that it is rather surprising that they are only used for running and climbing. But that is the main purpose, to which lizards apply them. The slow, deliberate clapping and unclapping of a chameleon's feet look like the movements which the hands of a sleep-walker might make were he trying to creep down the banisters. The chameleon's are almost deformed hands, yet they have a certain superficial resemblance to the feet of the parrots, which more than other birds use the foot for many of the purposes of a hand when feeding.

To see many of the smaller rodents—ground squirrels, prairie dogs and marmots—hold their food, usually in both paws, is to learn a lesson in the dexterous use of hands without thumbs. Rats and mice do not, as a rule, "clinch" what they hold, but merely support it in their paws, the movements being much less human than they appear. Nothing more readily suggests the momentary impression that a pretty little monkey is remotely "a man and a brother" than when he stretches out his neat little palm, fingers and thumb, and with all the movements proper to the civilized mode of greeting insists on shaking hands. But no one feels in the least inclined to grasp the clawed digits of any of the rodents which use their paws to hold food. They are only "holders," not hands.—London Spectator.

WILLIAM

WHERE THE GROWTH WAS REMOVED FROM THE KAISER'S THROAT.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Since the operation for a tumor in Emperor William's throat there has been persistent talk that the kaiser is really suffering from cancer.

To understand the history of the emperor's case it should be mentioned that he was operated on some weeks ago for an external pimple below the jawbone of the neck. This was described by the surgeons as merely a temporary efflorescence on the skin. It is recalled also that his majesty was operated on in 1877 for a small swelling of an eczematous nature behind the left ear.

The public generally believes the physicians when they say that the growth in the throat is of a benign nature, but the general fear is that it may develop, as in the cases of his father and mother, Emperor and Empress Frederick, into a malignant growth.

Experts on cancer and throat diseases all over the empire and in fact all over Europe, are eagerly discussing the operation, and the newspapers are as eagerly seizing upon everything that the medical men say.

As in the case of the late Emperor Frederick, controversy is already developing. Frederick was crown prince in May, 1887, when signs of throat trouble developed.

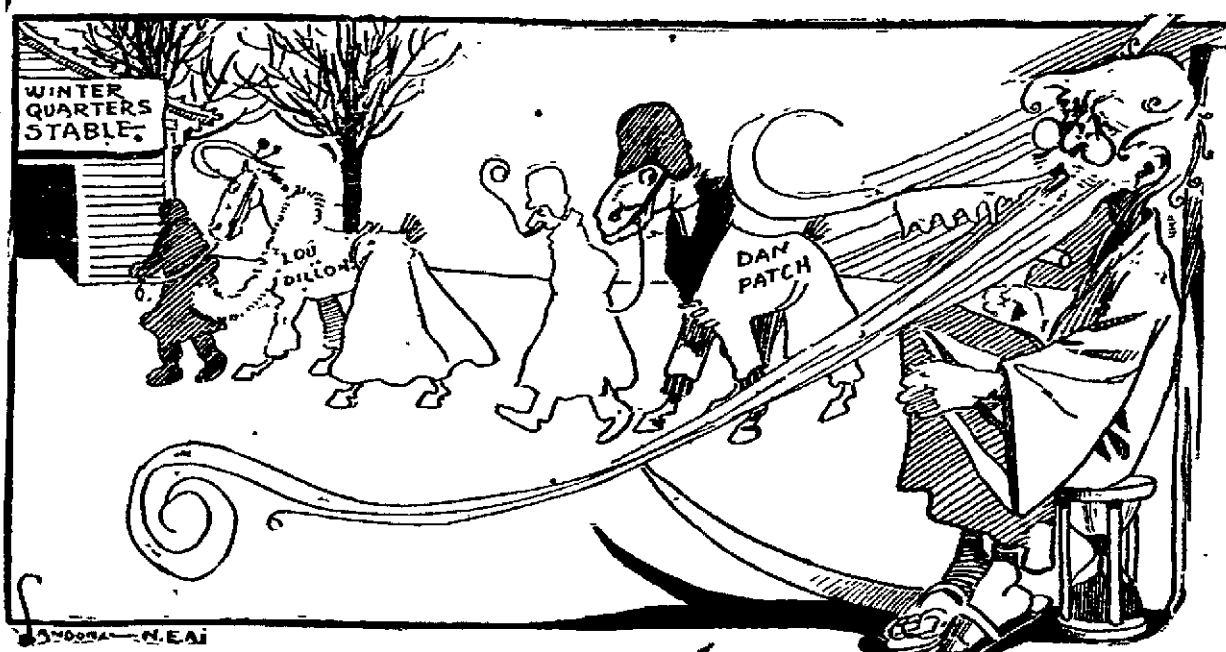

The German physicians, Gerhardt, Tobold, Von Bergmann, and others, diagnosed his ailment as cancer of the throat; but Sir Morell Mackenzie, the London specialist, who was recognized throughout Europe as a leading authority on diseases of the throat and who was called in by the Crown Prince Frederick and the crown princess, insisted that the disease was not demonstrably cancerous. He based his opinion on a microscopic examination by Virchow of a portion of the tissue. He consequently opposed the operation planned for the extirpation of the larynx as unjustifiable. The greatest importance was attached to the question because it was doubted whether anyone suffering from an incapacitating disease like cancer could, according to the family law of the Hohenzollerns, occupy the German throne, and there was talk of a renunciation of the succession by the crown prince. Under Sir Morell Mackenzie's treatment the Crown Prince Frederick went to England and was present at the jubilee celebration in June, 1887.

In November the disease had developed so far that the German doctors were again called in, and it was ultimately acknowledged that the disease really was cancer. An operation for tracheotomy was performed, and the crown prince spent the winter at San Remo. There he became emperor on the death of William I, on March 9, 1888. He undertook the journey to Berlin, but lingered only through a short reign of a hundred days. A violent quarrel was carried on between Sir Morell Mackenzie and the German surgeons and the medical world both as to the diagnosis and also as to the treatment both before and after the existence of a malignant growth was determined.

The Best Remedy for Croup.

(From the Atchison, Kan. Daily Globe)
This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old fashioned remedy for croup known as hive syrup and tulu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears, and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

FATHER TIME: WELL, THEY WON'T CHASE ME ANY MORE FOR AWHILE.

A HEART TO HEART TALK.

BY QUELLEPORT GORGON.

Dear Little Boys and Girls—There isn't anything I would rather do than talk to you except lending money to the government at a ten million profit or reorganizing a railroad.

Because, you see, I love little children and want them all to grow up like me and have enough money to make an Episcopal bishop or a new senator or possibly even a new president.

Remember, children, if you can't be president yourself you can be the next best thing, which is Me.

Now, I wonder if any little boy or girl can tell me what a syndicate is. Some one has said that a syndicate is a body of men entirely surrounded by money; but, my dearies, that isn't the answer. In reality a syndicate is a body of money entirely surrounded by men.

Some day, little ones, you may be a syndicate all by yourselves. When you are cable me at my expense, and I will exchange your stock for bonds.

Both of us will make money.

The only party that will lose is the Public.

Can any bright little boy tell me what the Public is? No? Well, the Public is merely a lot of people who buy worthless stock just to oblige the syndicate that wants to sell.

The Public is very tender hearted and wants all the good syndicates to make all the money they can, so it helps them out in this way.

Sometimes the Public is sorry for what it has done and sheds bitter tears. But I am not sorry, are you? Why should we be when we can make so much money to give away to the churches that really need it?

And now, little boys and girls, I want you all to remember that if you would be like me you must begin early and work hard. And not only work yourself hard, but everybody else. That is the secret of success.

And here's a little steel plant for each one of you. Put it in the ground, and some day it may grow up and bear lovely dividends—to cut.—Tom Masson in Life.

All That Was Lacking.

He had been away on a business trip for quite a long time and had brought his wife a handsome fan upon his return.

"You're just perfectly lovely, Fred," she said. "It's the dearest and most beautiful fan I ever saw."

"I'm glad you like it," he returned, with evident gratification.

"How could I help liking anything so pretty?" she asked, and then she added with a sigh, "I only wish I could carry it some time."

"Why can't you?" he demanded.

"No gown to go with it," she answered promptly. "There ought to be a gown to match or at least one that wouldn't look shabby beside it."

She got the gown. He kicked himself for two days and ever thereafter bought fans to match what she already had.—New York Times.

Runciman and Henley.

It is related that shortly after Runciman, the well known writer on seafarers and smugglers and poachers, had bitterly fallen out with W. E. Henley he lay dying in London. To Henley in Edinburgh, lame and ill, came an indirect message that Runciman believed that if Henley could come and look on him he would get well. It was a dying man's whim, but Henley took the train from Edinburgh and arrived in London to find his friend dead.

A Modern Instance.

"In some circles of ancient magnificence," said the pedantic person, "it was customary to have a skeleton at the feast."

"We follow that custom at our house," answered Mr. Meekton. "We have a turkey one meal and the skeleton for the next four."—Exchange.

Tipping the Scales.

"Confound it!" growled Closeman. "I dropped a dime in that weighing machine instead of a penny."

"Ha, ha!" chuckled his buffoon friend. "I guess that's when you tipped the scales."—Philadelphia Record.

NOTED FINANCIER'S NERVE

Accidents In Which William L. Elkins Displayed Great Fortitude.

The late William L. Elkins of Philadelphia, millionaire traction magnate and financier, was a great judge and admirer of horseflesh and a superb rider, says the Philadelphia Press. Three times horses had nearly been the death of him. When his country residence was at Cold Spring, Pa., some years ago he was accustomed to drive out there from Philadelphia after office hours. On one occasion his horse ran away, threw him out of his carriage, and he was left stunned and bleeding on the roadside.

Mr. Elkins was always noted for the possession of great nerve and resolution. Upon this occasion when he recovered from the shock he determined to walk straight home, two miles distant, although there were a number of farmhouses near the road intervening. Not only this, but, although in great pain, he picked up a number of articles which had dropped from the carriage and carried them with him.

Upon his arrival it was found that his shoulder had been dislocated, four ribs had been broken and that he had sustained other injuries. When the surgeon was about to administer anesthetics he declined to have the drug used and submitted without a groan to the painful series of operations.

His third accident was the result of a horse's fright. He was elected in 1879 by city councils of Philadelphia as a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

Soon after his election by councils he paid a visit, in company with President Scott and other directors, to Grand Rapids. The party was being driven in carriages to the station. With Mr. Elkins were Mr. Thaw and Mr. Parker Shortridge, a director of the company. The horses became frightened and began to run. Mr. Thaw jumped out and escaped uninjured. Mr. Elkins was thrown violently into the road as the horses made a wild dash around a bend. He fell with one of his legs doubled under him, with the weight of his heavy body upon it. The result was a compound fracture of the hip bone.

In connection with this curious accident Mr. Elkins displayed two marked traits of his character—great resolution and fortitude and his love of home. He asked to be sent to his wife at Philadelphia at once. The surgeon who had set the broken limb in a plaster cast said that the journey would probably kill him, but he insisted, and Colonel Scott had a special car prepared for him. When his son, George W. Elkins, met him at the old Pennsylvania railroad station at Third and Market streets he was in a low condition. At that time Market street was paved with cobble. The journey to the house over these rough stones proved to be the most trying of the entire trip from Grand Rapids, but once at home he said that he felt repaid for all that he had undertaken.

DANCING SCHOOL.

THE JERICHO POST OFFICE

Pap Perkins, Postmaster, Tells About a Lottery.

[Copyright, 1933, by C. B. Lewis.]

It was during the palmy days of lottery schemes that a sick, sick stranger arrived in the village of Jericho one evening and told the landlord of the tavern that he had come out into the country for a couple of weeks to get rid of dyspepsia.

He walked around the town next day and met the people, and everybody liked him. He was suave and soft spoken, and he let it be known that as soon as he could cure his dyspepsia he was going to Patagonia as a missionary. He had studied up on the Patagonians and knew just how to tackle them and turn them from their sinful ways, and he had decided to make that his life work.

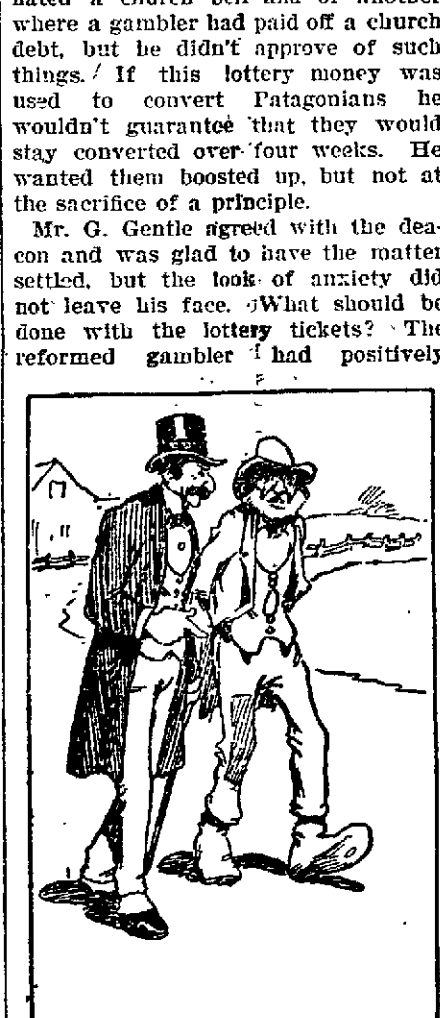

Gentle was his ways, and it seemed eminently proper that his name should be the same. "G. Gentle" he wrote it and added the letters "M. T. P.", which stood for missionary to Patagonia.

Mr. G. Gentle had been in Jericho three days when he asked Deacon Goodheart to take a stroll with him down by the milldam. They strolled, and when they had reached the pond and taken seats on a saw log the stranger announced that he had a secret to confide to the deacon.

He wanted to confide a secret and ask advice at the same time. He had selected the deacon in preference to any one else, and with considerable anxiety in his face and emotion in his voice he went on to say that a reformed gambler, whose reform might or might not be permanent, but who seemed to be much interested in missionary work, had given him as a donation twenty lottery tickets, each one of which was certain of drawing a prize. The sum total would be about $20,000, and with that amount he felt he could convert at least 50,000 Patagonians, but of late his conscience had been pricking him. Was it right to use lottery money for such a purpose? He had decided in his own mind that it was not, but he wanted to hear from others.

Deacon Goodheart had heard of a case where a horse jockey had donated a church bell and of another where a gambler had paid off a church debt, but he didn't approve of such things. If this lottery money was used to convert Patagonians he wouldn't guarantee that they would stay converted over four weeks. He wanted them boosted up, but not at the sacrifice of a principle.

Mr. G. Gentle agreed with the deacon and was glad to have the matter settled, but the look of anxiety did not leave his face. What should be done with the lottery tickets? The reformed gambler had positively guaranteed that each and every one would be good for at least $1,000, and what should be done with the money? It could not be used for churches, asylums, Sunday school libraries or even common charities without a sacrifice, and of course G. Gentle would not think of devoting it to any base cause.

Deacon Goodheart sighed and hunched around uneasily and after pursing up his lips and scratching his head threw out a hint that if he had $1,000 to spare he would know how to use it for the benefit of his fellow men. He would fill up the mudholes in the highway around Jericho, cut down the thistle patches along the asylum lanes and build a bridge or two, and if there was any money left it should be used to paint the schoolhouse.

"Exactly, deacon—exactly," replied G. Gentle. "If you had one of these tickets you would draw $1,000, and of course the money would be well expended. Now, if you were to pay me $10 for a ticket I could use the money on the Patagonians and not feel at all troubled over it. It would be money from a Christian man instead of a reformed gambler, who may not have thoroughly reformed after all."

The deacon didn't let any grass grow under his feet in closing the deal. If he could aid the moral and physical welfare of the Patagonians and the Jerichoans at the same time it was his duty to do so, and he was glad of the chance.

That same afternoon Silas Downey, who was always concerned about the heathen of China, had a visitor as he was working in his garden, and that visitor was G. Gentle. He had come with his conscience to ask advice of Silas, and he followed the same course as he did with the deacon. Silas also followed the same course as the deacon did. He would pay $10 for one of the tickets and use the $20 to try to check the spread of profanity in Chicago. He was glad that G. Gentle had arrived in Jericho and glad that he had brought lottery tickets along with him.

The third victim was Deacon Spooner. He had read of the Patagonians in history, and he did not believe that money got through a lottery scheme would elevate their moral standard. That same money, however, if judiciously expended in buying wooden legs and killing off potato bugs would bring blessings to mankind. The deacon grew enthusiastic as he talked, and he decided to take two tickets.

Then Good Fellow Davis, Trueeman Clapham and Moses Taylor were struggled with and became the possessors of a ticket apiece, and at the end of a fortnight the twenty tickets had been sold and G. Gentle had taken his dyspepsia to some other locality.

Then ensued a period of awful suspense in Jericho. The drawing was to take place on the 1st of the month, ten days after G. Gentle had sold his ticket. Each one who had purchased a ticket was supposed to be the only one, although every man doubted his neighbor and felt rancorous toward him. The post office sources were almost broken up by the bitter spirit that prevailed, and there was less trading of horses and borrowing and lending than ever known before.

The night when the lists arrived in Jericho will long be remembered by every citizen of the town. Not a ticket holder had drawn a prize or come within a mile of it. There was no G. Gentle to lay hands on, but there were others who needed walking on, and they were slammed and banged and left where they fell. The constable could do nothing except to wait until the last man had tired himself out and gone home, and then he left the wounded in the fence corners and sought his own bed.

G. Gentle had come and pocketed $200 in cash, and G. Gentle had vanished and left twenty eminent citizens to kick skins, pull hair and black one another's eyes.

On the next Sunday the heathen contribution in the two churches fell to 2 cents and a button, and to this day the ministers are not sure what caused the sudden and awful scaling down.

HUNTING ACCIDENT

Otto Harrison, of Jersey, Accidentally Shot by a Friend While Hunting Tuesday.

Jersey, O., Nov. 12.—The first hunting accident in this vicinity occurred here on Wednesday. Otto Harrison, aged 24 years, a son of Mr. George Harrison, and King Brown, a well-known young man, a friend of Harrison's, had gone out hunting. While tramping over the fields a covey of quail arose and Brown blazed away. The shot struck a tree, two of the small leaden pellets glancing off and striking young Harrison. One of the shot struck him in the eye and the other in the temple. Harrison was taken to the office of Dr. Quirk, of this place, and the doctor succeeded in removing the shot from the temple, but considered it advisable that he be treated by a specialist for the injury to the eye. Accordingly, he was taken to Columbus, where a physician at one of the hospitals examined the wound, but was unable to remove the shot, on account of the badly inflamed condition of the optic. He will return to Columbus in a few days to have the injured eye operated upon. At this writing he is resting quite easy.

TURKEY SUPPER

SEEKS FREEDOM

Does Emma Clark, the Colored Woman Charged With Pocket Picking.

In the probate court Wednesday afternoon, Emma Clark, a colored woman, by her attorney, filed an application for an examining board to ascertain if there was sufficient cause for her being held in the county jail.

The woman is awaiting the meeting of the grand jury on a charge of pocket-picking, preferred by Joseph Haslop, a former policeman, who, when the woman was brought before Mayor Crilly several weeks ago, charged her with relieving him of over $60.

She was given a hearing and bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $100, and being unable to give the amount, was placed in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

BIG GASER

Good for Three and a Quarter Million Feet Drilled in at Utica

Utica, O., Nov. 12.—The Utica Oil and Gas company, of this place, drilled in one of the very best gas wells in the territory on Monday of this week. The well is located on the Fred Sperry farm, and is good for three and a quarter million feet of gas a day. The well was tased on Wednesday.

APPETITE'S GONE

Food eaten without appetite always causes gastric disturbances, because the glands of the stomach are stimulated by a desire for food no digestive juices are formed. Consequently the food is wasted and clogs up the bowels. For Loss of Appetite and Constipation there is nothing to equal the Bitters. Try a dose before meals. It also cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Insomnia and Malaria, Fever and Ague.
